Directions from Zachary building room 241 to the interior of MSC

- Exit the room 241 through the leftmost door if you are facing the front of the room
- Take a left as you pass through the door and then take another left as when you come to the main hallway
- Walk down the hallway until you reach a set of stairs and take a left to exit the building
- Walk straight out of the doors until you reach the sidewalk that runs parallel with Spence Street
- Take a left when you reach the sidewalk and walk down the sidewalk until you reach Ross street
- Take a right so you will be on the sidewalk that runs parallel with ross street
- Walk down the sidewalk until you reach Lechner hall which is in front of Sbisá where a decorative water fountain is
- Take a left and walk on the sidewalk that goes past the BEUT building and continue walking past the big open field that will be on your right called simpson drill field
- When you come to the turn in the road, the sidewalk will end, so you need to cross the street.
- Once across the street, walk straight through the automatic sliding double doors and you will have reached the interior of the MSC

- A. These set of instructions were the best because they were the most straightforward and easy to follow.
- B. These instructions may be a bit over simplified compared to the others for someone who is familiar with the A&M campus though, but they would benefit tourists a lot
- C. The sequences produced used a lot of the same landmarks.
- D. These instructions would be best for new tourists or people unfamiliar with A&M but not someone in a hurry. These would also not work for a person in a wheelchair because they require use of the stairs.
- E. We would have asked if the person is in a wheelchair or is in a hurry. Or if the person wanted to see different landmarks on the way to the MSC.
